

ProWine Singapore moves to annual cycle through to 2024

With Southeast Asia's strong demand and growing wines, spirits and alcohol markets, the region's leading sourcing platform for the wines and spirits sector, ProWine Singapore, will be held annually from this edition through to 2024. Jointly organised by Messe Düsseldorf Asia and Informa Markets, following the upcoming instalment this September, ProWine Singapore will return alongside FHA – Food & Beverage from 25–28 April 2023 at the Singapore Expo.

According to Mr Gernot Ringling, Managing Director, Messe Düsseldorf Asia, ProWine Singapore's change in cycle for the next few years is an important milestone for the growth and development of the trade fair so it can continue to meet growing customer demand and serve global markets. "The last edition was held in 2018, thus the new schedule will offer more business value and ensure participants can maximise opportunities all year round. This move will also enable us to provide better portfolio strategies across the wines, spirits and alcohol market that will benefit our customers as they look to Asia to expand their investment presence."

Asia Pacific's alcohol sales volume is expected to return to pre-pandemic levels and reach US$420 billion by 2025. Fuelling the growth of the market are innovations in flavour and increasing demand for new and exotic flavours, segment diversification, more advanced distribution networks globally, and the ongoing premiumisation trend of wine and spirit products. The alcoholic beverage market is highly diversified in the region due to variation in taste and preferences, as well as social and cultural behaviours.¹ Due to the increased demand for premium alcohol, the Asia Pacific alcoholic beverage market is expected to continue growing at a strong rate.²

"In a business landscape that has changed with the recent global events, we understand the need to adapt and evolve. By pivoting our show to an annual platform, we provide the opportunity for a stronger presence to industry professionals to cater to their business growth. By annualising ProWine Singapore and FHA, we are providing an annual platform to bring together Asia's food and drink industry." said Mr Ian Roberts, Vice President, Informa Markets Asia
